

ABSTRACT

A map data transmitting server is interconnected with a vehicle terminal through a wireless network. The vehicle terminal determines a range of cells of which cell data are required for navigation based on vehicle state information, and requests 5 the map data transmitting server to transmit the cell data of the cells thereto.